

Press Release

Emco Corporation is pleased to announce the expansion of their relationship with Daikin North America. Effective April 1st, 2024, EMCO (CONVEX, EMCO HVAC and McKeough Supply) will be the distributor of Daikin unitary equipment in the Ontario market. Emco will also support the existing Daikin Comfort Pro programs. Daikin Comfort Pro contractors are a well-established network of some of the best HVAC businesses in the province and we are looking forward to contributing to the continued success of these dealers.

Emco and Daikin have achieved success in other Canadian markets and we look forward to replicating that through expanding our network of locations, growing technical support for the brand and offering a dedicated Daikin sales and support team to make the transition and future of the DCP network as successful as possible.

Emco has always built deep relationships with their vendors to provide their shared customers with a world class experience. We are thrilled to add a brand like Daikin unitary to our family of core vendors and look forward to continued growth with all our key partners!
